

Before we move on, let me answer a question: if every automation has only one event, why not store it in the automation itself? Because this way, we have the flexibility to add multiple events to automation if needed later.